

Nua Product Mockups

Product idea

The app, specifically designed to support mental health and psychological well-being, offers its users a wide range of features. These include a symptom journal that allows users to track personal developments and changes, as well as cycle tracking to help them better understand their bodies. In addition, the app provides a community feature that encourages exchange and mutual support among like-minded individuals. Thanks to its scientifically grounded content, users can be confident that they are receiving high-quality, evidence-based information.

SCREEN DESIGN

The shown screens are my own design. All other screens were designed in cooperation with my colleagues.

These are Figma Mockups. There were slight changes in the design of the final product due to feedback and technical execution.
